THE UNABOMBER LETTERS

A YAHOO NEWS SPECIAL REPORT

Please send a dictionary

Kaczynski, who is multilingual, has received letters from all the world, including Russia, Spain, Germany and India. But when an Italian correspondent wrote him in 2002, he couldn't read the language. So he responded by drawing a request for an Italian to English dictionary--specifically one in paperback to meet prison rules.

All letters and documents are property of the University of Michigan Library's Labadie Collection.
